Temporary removal.All four downtown pharmacies are closed at this hour. The only pharmacy left open is the Walgreens at 830 Main St. This is interesting because the two Walgreens at King's Landing are open. An odd mixture.
With Walmart recently announcing its plan to open a supercenter in downtown East Rutherford, the question is already being asked about whether the competition will reduce the number of pharmacies that will be in the strip center, and which of the downtown pharmacies will end up being displaced. It's possible that some of the old Town & Country Pharmacy, which has been open for years, will be displaced by the Walmart. But right now it's business as usual at the downtown pharmacies. Hours are 9 AM - 9 PM and 8 AM - 6 PM on Saturday. In the market for a copier? Long Island Copy Center is offering a sale right now. I have asked myself whether there is a simple and simple connection between the condition that a 2×2 matrix A is invertible (i.e. the determinant of A is non-zero) and the condition that the sum of two consecutive rows of A is not zero. To me, both questions seem to be equivalent. My question now: Is this true? Many thanks in advance. A: Mathematica's calculator shows that $\begin{pmatrix} 1 & 1 \\ 0 & 1 \end{pmatrix}$ is invertible, but $\begin{pmatrix} 1 & 0 \\ 0 & 0 \end{pmatrix}$ is not. A:

Yes, it's true. Consider $\left(\begin{matrix} 1 & 0 \\ 0 & 0 \end{matrix}\right)$. Q: Algebraic Geometry and refraction I'm having some trouble understanding the terminology in regard to Algebraic Geometry. It seems to me if we are talking about curves or points, then there is no concept of refraction. So I think I have a misunderstanding of what Algebraic Geometry is, perhaps due to not having a degree in mathematics. A:

When you are talking about a point or a curve, you are definitely talking about curves or points in \mathbb{P}^2 or $\mathbb{P}^1 \times \mathbb{P}^1$, respectively. For those, it's simple geometry, the refraction is trivial: light bends, it doesn't change direction. For curves or points in \mathbb{P}^1
